

The Voting Process

Voting is both a right and a responsibility for U.S. citizens. The U.S. Constitution asserts every citizen's right to vote. The responsibility is in the hands of the citizen.

Using the links below, research the voting process. Then create a brochure that promotes voting and explains the voting process. It could be a generic pamphlet, or it could be one geared to a specific election.

Research Links

Can I Vote?

<http://www.canivote.org/>

The National Association of Secretaries of State offers this Web site that details the voting process.

Federal Election Commission

<http://www.fec.gov/>

Established in 1975, the Federal Election Commission provides useful data and current events on our country's election and voting process. Students can find anything related to election and voting on this web page.

FairVote

<http://www.fairvote.org/>

This non-profit organization provides updates and materials to help voters better understand the process of voting.